The “Burning of ZOZOBRA” is an ancient Maipoe ritual of the Argentine that is celebrated when the days grow shorter and the weather cools. The change in the climate causes the snow god Ullr to awaken from his summer slumber. In order to appease Ullr and ensure cold weather and bountiful snow, it is traditional to burn an effigy of ZOZOBRA. It is the only way to appease this ancient shepherd of snow. You won't want to miss this!!
